

An Update from Andrew...

One of the great things about being a church family is that we have an “extended family” made up of people we know and love, even though they do not live in Columbia. On Sunday morning, Josh Austin preached for us, and he also reported on his work with the Salt River Church of Christ during our Fellowship Hall Bible Class. I am grateful for his challenging lessons and his hard work in ministry. Jeba Kumar was also with us, all the way from Chennai, India. He will be with us again Sunday, and he will share an update with his work in India in the Fellowship Hall Bible Class. On Sunday night, Kirk Brothers was with us to start our Columbia Bible Institute with an excellent lesson on prayer. Kirk is doing a wonderful job with Heritage Christian University, and it is always a blessing to have him with us.

As I write this, the final full day of our Columbia Bible Institute is taking place in Graymere Hall. We are looking forward to our potluck lunch with the men’s and ladies’ Bible Classes today, and several of our CBI participants will be leading the devotional and spending time with our auditorium Bible class tonight. These ministers are working with churches all over the south, and I am thankful for all they do. I am also grateful for Dan Winkler, Jody Apple, Kirk Brothers, Justin Rogers, and Michael Whitworth, who have planned and coordinated the lessons. Chad Landman has also worked hard to make this event run smoothly, and I am thankful for everything he has done.

On Wednesday night, we had another great opportunity to reach out and get to know members of our community through our Trunk or Treat. We had the opportunity for a devotional in song, and then we enjoyed Trunk or Treat in the Fellowship Hall. Although the rain did not show up the way we expected, our volunteers transformed our Fellowship Hall and hosted a large number of children, including a great crowd from our Into the City ministry. Several of our ITC volunteers provided a meal that afternoon for over 20 of the children involved in that ministry. Thank you to all those who made that happen; I hope we can continue to follow up with the families we met. Let’s keep learning and growing together!
